LAND AND WATER TRANSPORTATION

Automobiles, Launches and Mules on Lurline

There are several forms of transportation included in the 2,000 tons of general freight which is now being unloaded from the Matson Navigation steamer Lurline. This vessel drew up at the wharf about 11 o'clock this morning with a large and assorted cargo.

Four automobiles from the coast were down below. On deck fifty-nine mules, six horses and a lone cow reigned supreme, while at the after part of the ship reposed a sixty-two-foot power launch, the property of Mrs. S. C. Allen.

In the cabin the Lurline brought a large number of returning kamimins. Fifty-three people occupied the first-class staterooms and in the steerage were three passengers for this port.

In addition to the general cargo for Honolulu, the Lurline carries in transit some 900 tons destined for Kahului and 1,100 tons for Hilo. The deck load of mules and horses are to Schumann and the Waterhouse Trust Company.

The new launch, which comes to the order of Mrs. Allen, is in every way a fine craft. The launch has engines capable of developing 120 horse power and is known as an eastern standard engine. The vessel was built at the Swanson yards, Tiburon, Cal.

The Lurline brings people who are well known in social and commercial circles in the islands. Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Tenney and Miss Tenney returned after having participated in the launching of the new Matson liner Wilhelmnia at Newport News.

Mrs. Col. Ziegler is back from a visit to the mainland. Captain and Mrs. Berger and child also returned after a month spent on the mainland. The Jolly Knapmeister declares that he was much benefited by the trip to the coast. While away he secured new music which will be put into shape for his musicians. Berger insists that he is feeling younger with each succeeding trip to the coast, and he was accorded quite an ovation as he stepped from the gang plank this morning.

Fred C. Smith, general passenger and ticket agent of the Oahu Railroad, has been on a business trip to the states and returned by the Lurline.

The Lurline Dispatch was filled with fresh wireless news daily and the plant worked to perfection. Taking the heavy northwesterly swells which the Lurline encountered throughout most of her trip down from San Francisco, the indications point that some bad weather exists between Honolulu and the coast.

The Lurline will be given a prompt dispatch for the island ports through the agency of Castle and Cooke.

Three Hawaiians and one German were indicted in the state of victim to present themselves who faced the charges yesterday morning. The regulations were imposed upon the quarter.

Minister Laxarus, charged with having made off with some of the personal effects of an Hawaiian woman, was up for a hearing before Judge Andrade this morning.

The case was continued over until November 16. It was said that the woman and her companion were on one of the public thoroughfares last night. Some parties were booked for the station by the police and Judge Andrade did the rest this morning.

A brace of Japanese Hana Hana players were not working when they were plucked by Deputy Sheriff Rose and Officer Keillett last night. The party was interrupted in its deliberations over a knotty financial problem at a Kalamaua street tenement house. Six members of the party were caught and each drew a fine of seven dollars and the court trimmings.

Kaimuki doesn't get its reservoir just yet. The bids opened yesterday by Superintendent of Public Works Marston Campbell were too high for the territory and were accordingly declined. The Concrete Construction Co. offered to build it for $25,496 and 225 days as the period needed in which to complete the work. The other bidders were John Walker, $25,700 and F. E. Richardson, $26,140.

WATERFRONT NOTES

PLANS ARE BEING worked out at the Navy Department for the four submarines authorized by Congress. Proposals will be asked for construction soon. These and the fleet collier also authorized by Congress comprise the ship work still remaining to be contracted for by the naval establishment under increases in the Navy already provided for. The delay in contracting for submarines is due to the effort to obtain the very latest improvements. Congress appropriated $2,000,000 for the building of these ships and $900,000 for the collier. Bids for the latter ship were opened on August 31 and the requirement to be met is a vessel that will carry 12,500 tons of coal, including bunker and cargo.

STRANDED IN HONOLULU and with the prospect of a hard winter before him, June Hawkins, a San Francisco lad, stowed away on the Steamer Siberia in the hope of returning to San Francisco.

He was discovered after the vessel was one day out from the island and when his plight became known to the passengers a pump was collected which enabled him to pay his passage to this city.

Hawkins said, upon his arrival this morning, that he went to the islands last month on the Mongolia, but when he reached there he felt the call of his old friends and decided to return as best he could.

ORDERS HAVE been received at the Mare Island Navy Yard for the commissioning of the cruiser New Orleans, which has been out of commission while undergoing repairs for the last two years.

The officials expect to have the cruiser ready by Dec. 15. It is reported that the New Orleans will be placed in command of Commander J. J. Knapp, now commanding the monitor Cheyenne, now undergoing extensive repairs. Preparations are being made for target practice at Magdalena Bay. The Irish reconnaissance ship, which will accompany the fleet, will be under command of Commander Guy Brown, in order to sail for Magdalena Bay to act as station ship.

THREE VESSELS have left Grays Harbor for the Hawaiian Islands, each taking full cargoes of lumber. The schooner M. E. Foster is now out twenty-two days from the port and bound for Honolulu with lumber for Allen & Robinson. The American schooner Eva is destined for Mahukona and her lumber is consigned to the Hawaii Railway. This vessel is now out sixteen days. The schooner Dauntless, with cargo for the City Mill, comes to Honolulu and is now out fourteen days.

SEVEN HUNDRED and fifty tons of ammunition for three-inch guns is coming to Hawaii by the Matson Navigation steamer Hyades, which is to leave the Sound this week for Honolulu. The Hyades went into dry dock before taking on her cargo at Seattle. The vessel is also bringing 100 drums of gasoline and other lines of freight.

THE WIRELESS installation on board the Pacific Mail liner Korea met with the highest expectations. The Pacific Mail liner arrived at Yokohama on Sunday and the vessel was in communication with either the Hawaiian Islands or the coast of Japan each day of her voyage.

ONE HUNDRED and fourteen days out from New York is the present status of the American bark Nuuanu, which is bringing a general cargo of merchandise to the agency of Theo. H. Davies & Co.

THE ARRIVAL of the bark R. P. Rithet at San Francisco is reported. This vessel sailed from Honolulu on October 9th and the vessel was nearly a month on the return trip to the coast.

THE OCEANIC dock will be utilized by the United States army transport Sheridan when that vessel arrives at the port from San Francisco on Friday.

THERE IS a large freight list aboard the American-Hawaiian steamer Misourian, which has sailed from San Francisco, destined for Honolulu.

FROM BALLARD, Washington, comes the report that the schooner Endeavor has been placed on the berth to load cargo destined for Honolulu.

A SHIPMENT of oil for the Union Oil Company left Guaymas on November 5th by the steamer Santa Rita.

THE NEWCASTLE coal fleet on the berth, loading or on the way to the Hawaiian Islands, now numbers thirteen steamers and sailing vessels. Three of the vessels are steamers of fair tonnage and should arrive here with a shipment of about six thousand tons each. The German freighter Asgard is reported to have sailed from Newcastle, N. S. W., for Honolulu on November 5; this vessel comes to H. Hackfeld & Co.

FIVE THOUSAND sacks of fertilizer will be shipped to Kaula by the inter-island steamer Kinau, which is scheduled to depart at 5 o'clock this evening. The Kinau will discharge the fertilizer at Port Allen. The vessel also carried other extensive lines of cargo. Several returning legislators will take passage by the vessel.

THE ALAMEDA is sailing for San Francisco at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning with a shipment of sugar, tinneed plies and other lines of Hawaiian products. The steamer will carry a fair-sized list of passengers.

At 5 o'clock this evening the inter-island steamer Nokuu, for the ports of Kaula and Mahukona, is scheduled to sail, taking a general cargo for Hawaii.

THE BARK S. C. Allen with a shipment of lumber for Allen & Robinson, is reported to have left Eureka, Calif., seven days ago. The vessel is bound for Honolulu.

WATERFRONT NOTES

THE DUTCH cruiser Noordbrabant, from San Francisco, is in port after having participated in the recent festivities held at the California city. The vessel is now en route to her permanent station in Java. The vessel calls here for supplies and coal. It is expected that the cruiser will remain at Honolulu for several days. The war vessel sailed from San Francisco on October 30th and while she made no pretenses of fast steaming, the trip was an uneventful one.

WITH THE usual lines of freight for Hawaii and Maui ports the inter-island steamer Mauna Kea got away for Hilo via way ports at noon today. The vessel carried a number of legislators who have completed their duties at the extra session. The departure of the island liner was witnessed by quite a number of spectators.

THE POLICE descended upon the steamer Iwalani at an early hour this morning and landed right on top of a full-fledged crap game going on there. Three sailors belonging to the vessel were compelled to accompany the officers to the station. The crap shooters were given a fine of nine dollars and costs each by Judge Andrade.

THE STEAMER Iwalani is scheduled to depart today for Honolulu and Kaula with a general cargo.

FOUR GAMBLERS ARE CONVICTED

Vida And Colleagues Found Guilty By Jury

A jury in Judge De Bolt's department of the Circuit Court this morning returned a verdict of guilty against William Vida, George Kao, Sam Apollona and Kekipi, charged with operating a gambling game in the cellar of a house on Beretania street.

The main witness for the prosecution was A. P. Taylor, formerly chief of detectives who, as a special officer, visited the premises when Vida and his colleagues were busy with their little game of "seven eleven." Taylor told of seeing the money passed and the throwing of the dice, all of which was denied by each of the defendants and several others who were present at the game.

The defense, represented by Attorney Achi, admitted that the defendants were in the cellar for the purpose of gambling but insisted the game had not yet begun when Taylor testified to seeing the money passing and the dice flying.

The denials of the defendants were so plainly false that even Judge De Bolt was forced to smile at their story of the silent, funereal gathering in the cellar with no one speaking a word or doing a thing while, in contradiction, was Taylor's story of watching the game from a point of vantage. Sentences will be passed tomorrow.
